COURT BATTLE ENTERS RECESS

Tempestuous Trial of Secretary to Clara Bow Concludes First Week.

TELLS OF COSTLY GIFTS

Defendant Airs Actions of Film Star from Witness Chair.

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan 17—The tempestuous trial of Daisy De Boe former secretary of Clara Bow, on grand theft charges has entered a two-day recess after forcing the actress, temporarily at least, into the ranks of the unemployed.

The trial, packed full of the names and secrets of film people, closed its first week yesterday as Miss De Boe began "telling on Clara." The blonde secretary is charged with illegally taking $16,000 from the red-headed actress.

In 40 minutes on the stand as the first defense witness, Miss De Boe drew a hasty sketch of her former employer buying expensive presents for men, ordering large consignments of liquor, playing poker six nights a week and having her hair bleached and hennaed.

Replaced in Picture

Studio officials, who announced Miss Bow had been replaced by Sylvia Sidney, a recent recruit from the New York stage, in "City Streets," to have been her next starring vehicle, said the substitution was made at the orders of Clara's physician.

Miss De Boe listed some of the presents she bought at Miss Bow's requests for the actress' boy friends. There was a $4,000 watch for Dr. Earl Pierson, Texas physician, a $2,000 ring for Harry Richman, actor, and New York night club entertainer, and a $900 sapphire ring for Lothar Mendes, Hollywood film director.

This testimony was elicited as an explanation of why Miss De Boe had drawn checks some of them to cash, on the "special Clara Bow account," to which she had

By The Associated Press.

NEWARK, O., Jan. 17—Two high school students of Cambridge, O., were dead today as the result of an auto accident which occurred last night while they and two others were enroute here to attend the Newark-Cambridge basketball game.

CONGRESSIONAL GROUP ENDS LONG INQUIRY

Communism Branded as Grave Threat Against Democratic Governments.

UNDER MOSCOW CONTROL

More Than 500,000 in U. S., Is Estimate; Publicity Attack Advocated.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Communism was branded a grave threat to Democratic governments and their economic structure in the formal report submitted today to the house by its special communist investigating committee.

In a summary of evidence gathered in an eight months study in every section of the country of Communistic activities, the committee detailed its findings as a basis of legislative action. Its recommendations for strengthening immigration and deportation laws and federal surveillance of radical activities were to be made public later.

Over 500,000 in Ranks

The group of five, led by Representative Fish, Republican of New York, was ordered by the house last spring to inquire into Communist activities. Their report estimated there were between 500,000 and 600,000 communists and active sympathizers in this country. Only 12,000, however, were considered dues-paying member of the party.

The principles and aims of Communists are the same throughout the world, said the committee, and all take their orders from the Communist International with headquarters in Moscow and "obey them implicitly."

"The committee is convinced," it added, "that the surest and most effective way of combatting Communism in the United States is to give the fullest possible publicity to the fundamental principles and aims of the Communists."

See Revolution Threat

The five-year industrialization program of the Soviet Union, if successful, "the committee held, would become so great a money making machine that it "may finance Communism in world revolution."

"The purpose of the plan," it continued, "is not to build up but to tear down and destroy."

The committee said Russia had hurt the American manganese production industry and apparently was threatening the United States grain, lumber and wood pulp industries and anthracite producers.

An individual report was submitted by Representative Nelson of Maine, ranking majority member in which he predicted bolshevism

FESS DENIES CHARGE OF DEMOCRATIC HEAD

Republican Senator Terms Alleged Religious Attack as "Infamous Untruth."

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Chairman Fess of the Republican national committee, answered today the assertion he said Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, had made that the Republican committee was attacking John J. Raskob because he was "the leading Catholic layman."

"This is an infamous untruth," Fess said in a written statement issued by the committee. "This attempt to inject the religious issue is made for the very apparent purpose of throwing a smoke screen around the vigorous attacks upon Mr. Raskob by Democratic leaders such as Governor Dan Moody, of Texas, and Josephus Daniels of North Carolina.

"The Republican party paid no attention to Mr. Raskob until the public exposure of his sinister plan to impair or destroy the Republican party by scurrilous and slanderous attacks upon President Hoover and his administration.

"This conspiracy, which has been without counterpart in the history of American politics, was disclosed by a Democrat of unblemished party record, Mr Frank R. Kent, of the Baltimore Sun, who asserted in the September issue of Scribners' magazine, that Mr. Raskob had set up and was financing an organization in the nation's capital for the sole purpose of 'smearing' the President of the United States.

"The Republican national committee called the attention of the country to this scheme as exposed by Mr. Kent. Beyond this we care nothing about Mr. Raskob. The Democratic party is welcome to him and all of his millions."

New Novelist of Note is Former Marion Man

Readers of "Sheep" of the Painted Hills" one of the new books placed on the shelves of the City library, will peruse the volume with double interest, for the story is gripping and the author, Alexander Hull, is a former resident of Marion.

Together with his sister Dorothy, he spent most of his vacations at the Hummer home and for several months made his home with his grandmother and aunts and attended Marion high school. His schooldays are recalled by several of the teachers who have been employed in the schools for a period of several years and who remember him as a student of marked ability and adaptability.

Will Warns Us That Oratory Is Failure As Food

(Will Rogers Special)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Had a long talk with the president yesterday. He sincerely feels (with almost emotion), that it would set a bad precedent for the government to appropriate money for the Red Cross.

He feels that once the government relieves the people, they will always expect it, and you have broken down the real spirit of American generosity and spoiled all that our great American Red Cross has worked years to achieve.

Talked to Mr. Barton Payne, and all the head directors of the organization who were in conference at that time, and they felt the same way.

• • •

NOW, if we really want to see somebody helped, we better go ahead and raise our various quotas on what they asked, for even if this other passes it will be too late to save the fellow who is hungry now.

No matter what the politicians do, whether it's called a "dole" or a "gift," you can't live on these speeches they are going to make about it.

Oratory is an organic exercise but a digestive failure.

Personally, think we can use both funds (then 10 and the 25) and not give our needy the gout.

CHICKEN THIEVES DASH FOR LIBERTY

One of Trio Knocks Owner Down When Surprised in Hen House.

An attempted theft of chickens from the home of Malcolm Severns on the Millsor road south of the city was frustrated at midnight last night by Severns' sudden arrival on the scene.

Severns, who had been away from home for the evening, returned to find three youths attempting to steal a flock of 25 chickens. When Severns went to investigate, one of the trio knocked him down and the three then fled to their Ford sedan.

Severns ran after the car but succeeded in obtaining only part of the license number before the machine disappeared down the road. He turned in a partial description of the would-be burglars to Sheriff Charles C. Fye and Deputy Sheriff Chester Cosgrove.

TUESDAY SET FOR START OF CAMPAIGN

Local Red Cross Chapter To Drive for $5,000 as Drouth Relief Aid.

The Red Cross will launch its drive in Marion and Marion county Tuesday for the $5,000 of the local chapter in a nation-wide drive of the Red Cross to raise $10,000,000 for drouth relief, Miss Margaret Dowd, secretary of the chapter, announced today.

Launching of the drive has been somewhat delayed by the proposed appropriation by congress of $25,000,000 for similar relief work. Word from John Barton Payne, head of the national Red Cross, received here yesterday advised the local chapter that "pending legislation (on the appropriation) may never become effective. As a result the chapter is proceeding at once with the drive.

Details of the drive were not announced today.

Crows Can Caw in Peace Here As Bounty is Withdrawn

Marion county crows had good reasons for rejoicing this morning, following the announcement from the office of county commissioners that no money had been appropriated this year for crow bounties.

In previous years, there has been a price of 25 cents hanging over the head of every crow in the county, and Marion county nimrods drew between $1,000 and $1,200 from the county treasury each year by shooting the destructive birds.

Needing funds for other purposes, the commissioners left the bounty provision from the annual appropriation measure this year.

Some hunters made crow shooting a profitable business, making several hundred dollars each year by presenting crow heads to the township clerks, and receiving a voucher for 25 cents a head payable at the county treasurer's office.

District Attorneys Say at Least 20 Will Testify in Bank Case.

Grand Jury Seeking To Study All Angles Leading to Deficit.

By International News Service.

CLEVELAND O. Jan 17.—Seeking to study all angles of the irregularities which caused a deficit of $223,049.30 in funds at the Citizens' National bank at Galion, O. the federal grand jury has issued subpoena orders for the appearance of "several more" persons before the jury, William J McDermott, assistant U S district attorney, told International News Service here today.

The additional witnesses, said by McDermott to be "about 12," will be ordered to appear in the grand jury room in federal district court here at 1 p m Monday, when the federal body will continue its investigation of the bank case.

Names of the new witnesses were not revealed by McDermott. "To give the names of these new witnesses," he said, "would be hampering the work of the government in its attempt to investigate this case thoroughly."

20 Will Testify

Subpoenaes for the "about 12" witnesses were prepared by the assistant district attorney this morning. Deputy marshals were expected to serve them late today, in order to give the subpoenaed persons sufficient time to prepare for the trip to Cleveland, McDermott said.

To date the witnesses already subpoenaed or who are to be called before the jury, number about 20 according to McDermott. In addition to the six directors of the defunct institution, three other persons two of them members of the depositors' committee and a stenographer, were issued subpoenaes by a deputy marshal yesterday.

Confronted with the task of hearing the testimony of the witnesses to be subpoenaed yesterday and at least four government officials the jury may not finish its work until next Thursday or even later, McDermott said. All other cases which have been presented to the jury have been disposed of.

Government officials who are to testify when the grand jury continues its investigation Monday are A E Evensen federal receiver for

SUSPECT IN ROBBERY COMMITS SUICIDE

Cleveland Police Shoot Gunman; Accomplice Kills Self When Cornered.

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 17—Trailed to his home after his alleged confederate in an attempted holdup fell before a volley from a police riot gun, Robert Elrick, 24, shot and killed himself today.

Police attempted, to link both Elrick and the other gunman, identified as William Corris, 19, with the slaying of Albert Burke, an American District Telegraph operative a week ago.

Police had received information that a Cleveland Heights filling station was to held up last night and two detectives were lying in wait with a riot gun. When Corris ordered the attendant to hand over the receipts, he was shot 11 times, police said, after he had fired once with his revolver and missed. Elrick fled in their automobile.

Near death at a hospital, Corris named Elrick as his companion. As a squad reached Elrick's home, three shots were heard and the youth was found dead in the attic.

$25,000,000 VOTED AGAINST HOOVER'S WISH

Relief Work Fund Placed in Interior Department Bill.

FOES CAUGHT NAPPING

Some Not Present When Action Is Taken; President May Appeal to People.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17— The senate today approved the $25,000,000 appropriation for Red Cross relief work. There was no record vote.

The proposal, sponsored by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, was added to the interior department appropriation bill.

The vote came so quickly that administration leaders who intended to ask postponement of the proposal were caught napping.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, promptly asked the senate to reconsider the vote and then moved reconsideration.

Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, objected to reconsideration and the amendment stayed in the bill.

Predicts Passage

Smoot said he knew the provision would pass if put to a record vote and he wanted the interior appropriation bill, to which it is attached, passed.

He said the measure provided $34,000,000 to be made available for public work immediately and this was the first money the western states would get under the relief program.

Senator Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, had prepared to move that the Robinson amendment for $25,000,000 be made the special order of business for Feb 9. He drafted this proposal after a conference with President Hoover, who has complained that the senate proposal was interfering with Red Cross campaign for $10,000,000.

The President indicated strongly he would state his position to the public if the senate overrode his opposition.

Reed Among Absent

Reed, along with other administration leaders was not present when the sudden vote came.

Democratic Leader Robinson said he had no objection to reconsideration but in view of the fact his amendment was acted on after a quorum call, a roll call vote should have been taken today. McNary would not consent to fixing a time to vote, but after considerable discussion he left the matter for Smoot to determine as he was in charge of the bill.

House Republican leaders today had expressed the opinion that the fund for millions for the Red Cross would not meet substantial opposition in that branch.

Although the house leaders expressed the view that the legislation would set a bad precedent and possibly mean impairment of the present Red Cross organization, they said that during the present crisis such legislation might be justified.

The President was understood in Republican quarters at the capitol to have urged that the congressional battle be deferred until the Red Cross has had an opportunity to complete its campaign for $10,000,000; and that the proposal be made to loan to the Red Cross rather than a direct gift from the treasury. Both suggestions were reported to have been turned down by the sponsors of the legislation. It is then that the President was understood to have indicated he might go to the people.

When it seemed assured that the $25,000,000 proposal is going to the President, a veto was predicted by administration leaders.

As debate was renewed, Senator Bingham, Republican of Connecticut, led the administration fight against the appropriation which he characterized as a "dole."

Attitude Unchanged

The complaint taken to the White House by officials of the Red Cross that the appropriation project was impeding their own $10,000,000 drive for public subscription left the senate unmoved.

GIVES REPORT ON PRISON FIRE

Undoubtedly of Incendiary Origin, Griswold Says in Final Message.

INVESTIGATION DIFFICULT

Not Sure Whether State Will Be Able To Put Finger on Guilty Man.

By International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17 — The Ohio penitentiary fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, Hal H. Griswold, retiring director of public welfare, declared unequivocally in his year's report to the governor, made public today.

Griswold, a lawyer before becoming a state cabinet member, and now planning to return to practice in Cleveland, was unwilling to speculate, however, as to whether the state has sufficient evidence to prove the charge he and others have made.

"Whether the state can put its finger on the man who is responsible and convict him is more than I would attempt to say for publication," he declared.

Griswold, who as head of the department that supervises all state institutions, played a big part in investigations of the fire, had not before given an opinion of its origin.

Referring to improvements planned at the penitentiary at the time of the fire, Griswold said "It seems tragic that the cause ... seems tragic that this catastrophe should have occurred at the one place where 90 days later such occurrence would have been impossible."

Griswold's report also contains a recommendation that a tubercular ward for all state prisoners suffering from that disease be established at the London prison farm.

"Many of the most desperate characters in the prisons of Ohio will be found among the active tubercular patients and a very strong type of detentional facility is needed for their care," he said.

"A very expensive building segregated from the rest of the prisoners will be necessary," he adds.

Active tubercular cases were found at the Girls' Industrial school at Delaware and provision was made for housing during the summer in tents similar to those used at the penitentiary, according to the report.

LUDENDORFF SEES WAR COMING ON

German Strife, Then World Conflict Is Prediction in Newspaper.

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 17—Civil war in Germany, leading to a World war and the destruction of Europe, are predicted by General Ludendorff in a signed article in his newspaper, Volkswarte, this week.

The German war general claims he has positive information that "authoritative circles are negotiating with the Nationalist leagues to establish a dictatorship head by President Von Hindenburg Minister of Defense Groener and Chancellor Bruening, with Mussolini in the background."

According to Ludendorff's claim the dictatorship would be based on the Reichswehr, steel helmeters and similar Fascist groups.

"This means civil war," writes the general, "which will bring about what, without my work, the World war would have accomplished namely, the destruction of Germany. Naturally this civil war will lead to a world war and the destruction of Europe."

Banner headlines over the article proclaim "civic war imminent."

A government spokesman, questioned about the article and the convictions it expresses, said:

"General Ludendorff's statement is not taken seriously. It will be ignored."

MORROW COUNTY TO RAISE RELIEF FUND

Committee To Make Drive for $1,000 To Aid Own Drouth Sufferers.

Special to The Star.

MT. GILEAD, Jan. 17—A meeting of the committee for the relief of drouth victims in Morrow county was held at the office of County Agent R. L. Bazler Thursday night.

After consideration of the request of the national Red Cross for a fund of $1,600 to be raised in the county and sent to national headquarters for the relief of drouth stricken areas the committee decided that it would be impossible to raise the required sum in the county for that purpose, and Dr. R. L. Pierce was instructed to so notify the national headquarters.

A fund for relief work in the county will be raised at once through all civic organization, lodges, churches and other organizations. A goal of $1,000 is set. The fund will be kept entirely separate from Red Cross funds but will be in charge of Mrs. Ruth Ramsey, treasurer of the Red Cross.

Miss Marion Loren, county nurse, and F. E. Richardson, the county humane office, will act as investigators and administrators of the relief work. Their work will start as soon as sufficient funds have been collected to take care of the most pressing cases. The committee has set Monday, Feb 2, as the date for starting the relief work.

HARDING CAGERS WIN FIRST GAME 22-8

ASHLAND GOES INTO LEAD IN N.C.O. LOOP

Presidents Play Best Game of Year To Outshine Bucyrus Quintet.

Hilltoppers Sink Field Goal in Final Minute To Win, 17-15.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

HARDING High school's scarlet clad warriors of the hardwood came to life with a vengeance last night and smothered the Bucyrus Redmen to chalk up the first victory of the season by a 22 to 8 score. The win keeps the Presidents out of the cellar position but shoves the Bucktown boys into the lowest possible position.

Ashland High fought their way through a stubborn Galion defense to win its third straight start of the season and go into first place in the league. The final score was 17-15. Mansfield and Shelby will not play until tonight.

• • •

PLAYING an inspired contest most of the time, the Bohyer coached five completely outshone the Bucktown boys, holding the opponents to three field goals for the game. All three of the two pointers came in the opening half. Bucyrus was able to gather nothing more than a single point in each of the last two periods.

Jack Ling, Harding's latest "discovery," made good in a big way in the Bucyrus encounter, leading the scorers with a total of nine points. Ling played a bang-up game at the pivot post, out jumping his opponent and playing a large part in the offensive attack of the Harding five.

Ling opened the scoring for the locals with a prettily executed two pointer early in the opening period of play. The lanky center repeated for another shortly after the first one and completed his scoring for the half with another counter in the second quarter.

Davey Merkel, diminutive forward and spark plug of the Harding offense, contributed the only other goal for Harding in the opening half. The Presidents lead at the mid way point 10 to 6.

In the third period Dick Morgan broke loose for three fielders in rapid succession to put the game on ice for Harding. Merkel also located the net for antother pair of goals.

Bucyrus was out-classed by the Bohyer charges throughout the game tonight. The Presidents showed more sustained scoring power than at any time this year although occasional lapses cost them several points. The passwork was improved over that of previous games this year and the shooting was also more accurate than formerly.

Bucyrus apparently is still on the hunt for a combination capable of gathering points. At no point in the conflict did the Bucktown five display high class basketball. The passwork was bad and the shooting was worse. The attack of Bucyrus was weak and the defense could be penetrated with comparative ease.

AFIELD goal tossed in by Thomas, Ashland center, in the final 30 seconds of play last night broke a 15-15 deadlock and sent the Hilltoppers into undisputed possession of first place in the league. The victory gives Ashland three won in three started and the defeat was the first for Galion in the same number of contests.

Inasmuch as Galion has been exhibiting what was thought to be the fastest moving offense in the circuit the Ashland victory can be considered in the realm of upsets. The Hilltoppers have played good ball after a comparitivey slow start this season but Galion had looked stronger.

The game soon turned into a defensive battle soon after the opening whistle. Ashland used its usual slow breaking offense, waiting for the breaks to score points. Galion's bigger men made passing difficult for Ashland.

Ryholt, guard for Ashland and Hockstra, Galion center were escorted to the showers before the completion of the game as a result of four personal fouls.

The teams played on fairly even terms throughout the entire game. The count was knotted at the end of the first period, 5-5 but Ashland jumped into a 10 to 8 lead by the half. The Orangemen deadlocked the count again in the third period 10-10, holding the Ashlanders scoreless for the quarter.

Another desperate battle for points took place in the final frame with honors even until the fatal last minute when Thomas dropped his shot through the net for the deciding two points.

By The Associated Press.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 17—A new leader was in the picture today as the 62 remaining contestants in the $10,000 Agua Caliente open golf tournament came to the final 18 holes of play. Wilfred (Wiffy) Cox, Brooklyn, N. Y., professional, was a stroke to the good over his closest competitor.

Martel Divides Double Court Bill With Kirkpatrick Fives

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

THE outstanding battle of the season to date in the Y-Church basketball league will go by the boards tonight as the First Presbyterians and Central Christian No. 1 quintets clash on the Y. M. C. A. court. Neither team has been beaten this year. Each has won four.

The winner of this game will automatically go into a deadlock with Waldo for the lead in the circuit. The Waldo five has already won five games but has met neither of the two principals of tonight's conflict.

The final result of the battle is apt to be very much in doubt until late in the game. Both teams are strong although the Christians will take the floor as slight underdogs The first team of Christians will probably match anything the Presbies can put on the floor but the reserve strength is another story The Presbyterians have two full teams ready for the game.

• • •

The Christians will have Johnnie Gillis as one of their chief scoring threats but his fast stepping brother, Vic, is not expected to play Vic prefers to conserve his strength for the game at 8:30 which the Y-Indus club will play with Middletown. Several of the First Presbyterians are also members of the Y-Indus outfit but whether or not they will play in the Sunday school engagement is not certain If Roush, Keller and Lockwood, all Y-Indus players, are playing against the Christians, the latter stand a good chance to take their initial defeat of the year.

I am unusually jubilant today! The reasons—there are two of them. First, Harding High school has entered the victory column in basketball. Secondly, I have been attacked — through a subterranean source of course, but at least it gives me an opportunity to discover some one is reading this daily effort.

If I adhered strictly to this "miniature spuds" advice I might devote this daily column of space to the publishing of students who win Rhoades scholarships rather than using news which for the most part concerns Harding athletics. It might be much more interesting at that . . for some persons. Oh My, I'm yawning again. Won't some one please throw another backslap at this column so I'll have something to keep me awake.

It was an unusual scene in the Harding dressing room following the victory of the Presidents over the Bucyrus Redmen. Instead of the usual "blues" song and the customary, "Maybe we'll get going next week," the walls fairly echoed with, "Boy, I knew we would"—and "We're going to do it again next week." Backslapping was the vogue and loud and mighty were the praises for the pivot man of the Harding five, Jack Ling.

Seldom has such an atmosphere pervaded a Harding team. Yesterday it was chronicled in this column that Harding was at a fork in the road. If the team lost again it was almost certain to finish the season with a disastrous record If they won they would have a chance to establish a creditable record for the season.

The statement is reiterated here today. If the team puts everything possible into their practices during the coming week Galion may find defeat staring them in the face Next Friday night Work hard, Harding—the season is not half over.

Thirteen football players were killed in the United States during the 1930 season.

GOLDSMITH SHINES IN SPEEDY BATTLE

Martel Girls Lose Third Straight Contest, 22-20; Rally Falls Short.

BY BOB BYRD

MARTEL and Kirkpatrick divided honors in two hard fought skirmishes on the Martel court last night.

The Martel lads exhibited flashy pass work and well organized plays in a battle that was not cinched until the final blast of the whistle blew with the score standing, Martel 26, Kirkpatrick 20.

Both quintets included good individual players, but Kirkpatrick's plays were not so well organized and timed. Martel's cramped court prevented its own team from carrying to completion many of their plays. Goldsmith, Martel's hefty guard, displayed a good brand of passwork but many of his passes were broken up because the size of the floor crowded the players.

Goldsmith and Burkhart, Martel forward, made a good combination with Burkhart sinking three field goals and four charity shots while Goldsmith netted one of each. Price, another Martel guard, accounted for seven points.

Tie for Honors

R. Hart, Kirkpatrick center, tied with Lyons, Martel's jumper, for tipoffs, and led Kirkpatrick scorers with nine counters. Hart and Hill, Kirkpatrick forward, coordinated in snappy passwork that enabled the two to score a total of 15 points.

Martel lassies were not so fortunate Led by Lemke, stocky Kirkpatrick forward, the visiting girls ran up 22 points, handing Martel guls their third consecutive defeat by a score of 22 to 20.

The game might have taken a different turn had not Mary Ellen Reed, Martel center, been jerked late in the game on fouls She played a style of basketball that would make her an asset to any Marion county sextet, and led all other feminine scorers with 16 points.

Likins, lanky Kirkpatrick center, took a majority of the tipoffs. Both teams guarded closely. Valiant efforts of the Martel girls in the third quarter held the visitors scoreless for the period while Martel chalked up four The rally did not endure after Reed was taken from the floor.

TOM HEENEY LOSES TO COAST FIGHTER

Max Baer Wins as Freak Count Ends Bout in Third Round.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 — Jack Dempsey, in his modern role of referee, manages to get himself into more weird jams than he ever did as a fighter.

The old Manassa mauler was third man in the ring of Madison Square Garden last night when Tom Heeney was knocked from the ring in the third round of his ten round match with Max Baer and then was counted out when he least expected it and least needed it.

Old Tow had cuffed the cocky California youngster around the ring in the first two rounds, charging in with both fists flying and generally making it embarrassing for Baer. The third round had barely got under way when the two battlers got themselves all tied up in a wrestling match.

A few light punches sent Heeney off balance and he sailed through the ropes, into the press box. Apparently unhurt, Tom clambered back into the ring and rested on one knee, all set to take a little time to get his bearings before resuming the struggle. The knockdown time-keeper, Arthur Donovan, momentarily forgot he had counted two while Heeney was outside the ring, and counted up to eight. Then Donovan remembered, added eight and two and found they made ten, and waved Heeney from the ring. There was nothing Dempsey could do. He was just as surprised as the 8,000 cash customers and Heeney at the queer ending of the bout in which the veteran New Zealander had put up a much better fight than anyone had expected him to.

Johnny Wooden, Purdue's sensational basketball player, was a member of the Martinsville, Ind., high school team when it was the Hoosier state champion.

Caledonia Defeats Claridon in Thrilling Overtime Fray; Pleasant Upset.

CALEDONIA and Claridon battled through four periods of furious play last night on the Claridon floor to a tie score, 20 to 20. Caledonia dropped through a field goal in the overtime period to win the game 22-20. The Caledonia girls fell victim to Claridon, losing 25 to 12. Wilcox, Claridon forward, topped the scorers with a total of five goals and four free throws for 14 points.

Prospect upset Pleasant on the Prospect court 25 to 21 in another hard fought battle. The game was closely contested all of the way with the count deadlocked at the end of both the first and second periods. Pleasant jumped into the lead in the third period but lost when Prospect put on a sudden rally in the final frame.

The Pleasant girls continued to retain their lead in the western sector, defeating Prospect 25-21. Shepard and Kyle of Prospect and Eichhorn vied for scoring honors, Shepard nold a slight lead with 12 points.

Y-INDUS DEFEATED 34-32 IN OVERTIME BATTLE AT TIFFIN

Vic Gillis Collects 20 Points To Top Scorers; Passwork Erratic.

OLD Man Jinx and a brilliantly performing center on the Tiffin Y. M. C. A. team combined last night to prevent the Shovel Y-Indus club from winning its thirteenth basketball encounter of the season. The locals lost the game 34-32 after the engagement was forced into an overtime period.

Tiffin jumped into an early lead during the game, leading 9-5 at the first period but the Y-Indus came back and deadlocked the score by half-time. The score at the midway point was 13-13

Passing Erratic

The passwork of the Shovel club did not measure up to its usual standard in the third period and Tiffin again forged into a slight lead which the Y-Indus overtook early in the final quarter. The game was forced into an extra period of play when Gillis heaved a two pointer through for the Marion club to knot the score 29-29

In the five minute overtime period both teams put on a temporary scoring spree with Tiffin getting two points the better of the argument Neiderhauser dropped in the winning goal for Tiffin.

Too Much Blum

The downfall of the Y-Indus came as a result of the inability to stop the scoring antics of Blum, elongated Tiffin center. Blum connected with the net for five field goals and 4 foul to top the scorers. He also played a good game on defense, holding his opponent, Lockwood scoreless.

Vic Gillis had another field night, scoring the huge total of 20 points on eight fielders and four charity tosses

The Y-Indus five will meet Middletown on the Shovel gym court tonight at 8:30

WALDO WINS

Meeker Teams Fall in Double Court Bill, Losing Both Games.

Waldo High school won double honors on the hardwood court last night, taking both ends of a double header program with Meeker. The first and second teams of both schools played.

The Waldo first stringers had little difficulty in taking Meeker into camp winning 35 to 18 in a rather one-sided exhibition. The second Waldo team found the going more rough though and was forced to fight hard to win an 18-10 decision

Meeker played on fairly even terms in the first half of the game when Waldo's superior passwork enabled it to forge ahead to victory.

These two games will not count in the standings of the Marion county league as they are not league engagements.

8 BIG TEN QUINTETS IN GAMES TONIGHT

Ohio State To Renew Rivalry with Michigan; Chicago Meets Gophers.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17— Eight Big Ten basketball teams will take a whirl at unraveling the 1930 championship race tonight, with certainty of reducing the list of unbeaten outfits to two.

The big reducing job will be done at Chicago where the Maroons and Minnesota will meet. Each has won its single conference start, Chicago having defeated Indiana, 28 to 27, and the gophers having overcome Iowa, 26 to 22. The teams appear evenly matched, any edge belonging to Chicago because of its home floor advantage.

Michigan, with two victories and one defeat, will invade Ohio State which has broken even in two games.

Illinois, loser in its three conference contests, appears to be in for another defeat when Indiana invades Champaign.

Iowa will meet Wisconsin on the Badgers' floor.

Northwestern, leader of the race with two straight triumphs, and Purdue, which has been a disappointment so far will be idle.

BISHOP CAGERS OUT TO HURDLE BEARCAT OBSTACLE TONIGHT

Bishops Hold Lead in B. A. A with Pair of Court Victories.

By United Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17—Ohio Wesleyan, the perennial challenger for athletic supremacy of the Buckeye conference, will attempt to clear another obstacle in the way of a basketball title tonight when it plays the University of Cincinnati quintet here.

Coach Ray Detrick's Wesleyanites are leading the conference with two victories. Cincinnati has one victory and nc defeats.

Wesleyan appears a heavy favorite because of its string of triumphs, but the Bearcats have spoiled Wesleyan hopes twice in the last two seasons. Coach Detrick put his team through a week of hard workouts to preclude the possibility of another upset.

Wesleyan has beaten Miami and Ohio University, and Cincinnati defeated Denison in its opener. Wesleyan defeated Depauw, conditional member of the conference but Cincinnati lost to the Indianans by a wide margin.

Ohio University will try to overtake Denison tonight in a game at Athens. Denison holds third place with one win and one loss and Ohio lost its only league contest.

In other games which include members of the conference, De Pauw will play Miami at Oxford and Ohio Northern will play Wittenberg at Springfield.

MT. GILEAD WINS

LaRue Beaten 27-9; Morrow County Player Ends Career.

MT. GILEAD, Jan. 17—The Mt. Gilead cagers won from LaRue, 27 to 9 here last night. The game marked the end of basketball in the high school for one of Mt. Gilead's best known athletes, Hobart Richardson, who will be ineligible for further athletic competition after the end of first semester. He has won letters in basketball, football and baseball.

The local girls defeated the Marion county team with ease, 26 to 7 Stevens at center leading the scoring with four field goals. Mathews and Bennet at the forwards were close behind with three each.

MARKET SKIDS BEFORE CLOSE

Prices Reach Week's Low Level with Declines of 1 to 4 Points Recorded.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—The stock market skidded in the last half hour of trading today, and closed around the week's lowest levels.

The slow rally of the previous session continued during the first hour, but trading slackened so close to a standstill that professional traders itching for action dropped heavy selling orders in the late trading and the list closed with a weak tone, one to four points lower. Sales were only about 650,000 shares.

Chemicals were again under pressure. Allied broke four points and Du Pont and Air Reduction, more than two. Westinghouse Electric and Vanadium lost two, and issues closing a point or more down included U. S. Steel, American Can, Eastman, Goodyear, American Telephone, American and Foreign Power, General Electric, and American Smelting. National Biscuit was a firm feature, closing up a point.

The market recorded numerous temporary gains of a point or more during the early trading. Rails displayed group strength, presumably reflecting brokerage house gossip to the effect that a favorable decision of the valuation is expected from the interstate commerce commission shortly.

Announcement of a price reduction by Ford Motor Co. may have been a factor in the selling, although such a move was not unexpected, and Edsel Ford, in making the announcement, spoke optimistically of the outlook, saying reports from dealers and branches throughout the world "lead us to believe automobile business will show a steady improvement."

GRAINS SUFFER NEW LOSSES

Wheat Shows All-Around Decline; Corn Undergoes General Sag.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—Grains suffered new townturns early today, influenced by assertions that prices of hogs and cattle were materially under a profitable feeding basis. Hog values were reported at the lowest level in seven years. Opening unchanged to ½ cent lower, wheat afterward showed all around decline. Corn started unchanged to ¼ up and subsequently underwent a general sag.

100 MOTHERS SHARE IN PENSIONS HERE

County Gives Aid to Extent of $8,000; Average $7 a Month.

Exactly 100 mothers shared in the mothers' pensions paid out by the juvenile court during 1930, a checkup showed today.

These 100 mothers received a total of $8,656.50 in pensions, which are awarded to widows with children or women whose husbands have either deserted them or are in penal institutions, leaving them with children to support.

The amount received by each ranged from $5 to $25 monthly, depending on the number of children and other circumstances. Most of the women received the minimum amount of $5, making an average for the group of $7 each month.

County commissioners last year appropriated $9,000 for mothers' pensions, but this year they have reduced the amount to $8,000 according to the annual appropriations made public yesterday.

WOULD GUARANTEE RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

Ohio Legislative Proposal Will Hit at Power of Justice of Peace Courts.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17—A bill designed to reduce the power of justices of the peace and constables and reestablish the right of trial by jury will be introduced in the general assembly, Representative Hugh E. Addison announced today.

Addison's bill will be aimed at officials who have jurisdiction in cases of speeders and similar violators. The question of the right of trial by jury has resulted frequently in charges of unfair handling of cases and splitting of fees.

Addison said he will seek the support of both Republicans and Democrats in the house of representatives.

The author of the bill cited long-standing unrest in Ohio resulting from existing provisions in the law covering justices of the peace and constables. He expressed the belief it would be one of the state's major legal reforms.

Under the present statues and court decisions, a person charged with an offense punishable by fine only cannot demand trial by jury.

Addison's bill is the first announced which follows the recommendation of Governor George White in his inaugural message, in which he urged the restoration of the people's rights.

AMERICAN EDITOR MUST LEAVE CUBA

Ordered Deported by President Machado for Opposition to Government.

By International News Service

HAVANA, Jan. 17—President Gerardo Machado today had ordered the immediate deportation of John T. Wilford, an American citizen and editor of the Havana American, a publication which consistently has been opposed to the present administration.

The newspaper, an English language publication, was one of many suspended in Havana last week by the government. At that time practically all Spanish language newspapers were ordered closed.

They were charged with "indiscreetly encouraging acts against the government by giving prominent space to anti-administration activities."

Wilford has been a resident of Havana the last 20 years, and long has been identified with Cuban journalism.

Two Spaniards, Jose Fonta Carballo and Jose Alvarez Salas, also were ordered deported. They were accused by the Pinar Del Rio provincial government with having participated in plots for bombing outrages in that district.

Scientist Visions Rocket Going to Moon and Back

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—A trip to the moon and back again in a rocket hurtling through space at 12,000 feet a second will be entirely possible in 15 or 20 years, in the opinion of Professor Robetr Esnault-Pelterie, French scientist who is here to gain financial backing for his experiments and to address the American Interplanetary society.

"I think I am qualified to make the voyage myself," the professor said, "but first the rocket will be sent without a human navigator."

He explained that the pilotless rocket would circumnavigate the moon and return again, carrying instruments to record height, degrees of heat and pressure, and take motion pictures of the frigid or unknown side of the moon. It would take about 10 hours to reach the moon, he said, and as long to return.

The venture would cost several millions of dollars, he said.

An automatic Electric ironer on ironing day — a kitchen table the rest of the week

The Conlon

She No Longer Calls It "Ironing Day"

OF course it used to be just that . . . an entire day spent laboriously over an ironing board . . .

But the modern housewife gets her ironing done in an hour or two, at most . . . and it really doesn't seem like ironing at all. She sits at ease before an Electric Ironer and sheets, towels, pillow cases . . . every article of household linen, no matter how heavy . . . glide rapidly through and come out smooth, lustrous, perfectly ironed. It's really done in a third of the time it used to take, and, oh, how much easier it is!

Why don't you find out how nearly effortless, how economical in operation these modern Electric Ironers really are. Step in today . . . we'll gladly demonstrate.

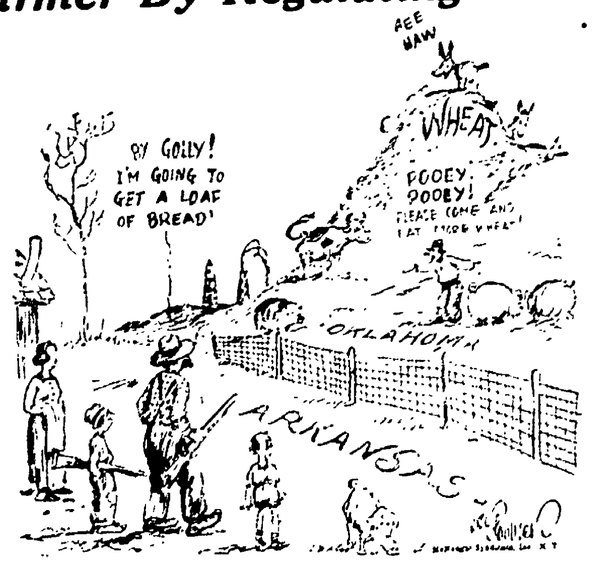
Will Figures a Rockefeller Could Bring Much Needed Relief to Farmer By Regulating Price of Products

City or State Should Give Men Work Rather Than Charity, Rogers' Idea.

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the press. Course those five hundred that come in out of the woods down in Arkansas and demanded food for their families, that was a real sensation. It caused more than any one item that had appeared in a long time. Now those folks down there sho was hungry or they wouldent have come in and asked for food for if there ever was proud people it's them. They don't believe in accepting Charity.

Well the Government woke up and voted $15,000,000 for food right away. At first the Government said they would try and provide money to get the Farmers some seed for their next crops, but that they wouldent give them money for food as that would be too much like the "Dole," that's the thing they do in England when you can't get work they give you a certain weekly allowance, and its called the "Dole." Course everybody over there says it hasent worked out and that it was a mistake to start it. But I guess the ones that have been receiving it and buying their bread, don't think it is such a terrible blunder, so thats the way it is, it sorter depends on which side of the fence you are on.



Plenty of wheat in Oklahoma.

Should Use Brains

If you live under a Government and it don't provide some means of yo getting work when you really want it and will do it, why then there is something wrong. You can't just let the people starve, so if you don't give em work, you don't give em food, or money to buy it, why what are they to do? What is the matter with our Country anyhow? With all our brains in high positions, and all our boasted organizations, thousands of our folks are starving, or on the verge of it. Millions of bushels of wheat are in Granaries at the lowest price in twenty years. Why cant there be some means of at least giving everybody all the bread they wanted anyhow?

Here they are starving in Arkansaw and in our adjoining state of Oklahoma they are feeding their wheat to the stock to try and get rid of it.

Oil, there was never such an overproduction of oil in the World, and yet Gasoline was never much higher. But there you have a business that's in the hands of a few men, and they see that the price is kept up. It's not regulated by supply and demand its regulated by manipulation. If the Farmer had a Rockefeller among them you wouldent see them pulling off a hundred different ways, and no two agreeing on what to do.

On Wrong Track Somewhere

Now this Farm board I been reading all I can about em, on both sides, and Lord knows there is sure two sides. If ever a Gang of fellows that are, (we all know trying to do some good) ever kicked up a dust its them. Now take Mr. Colidge for instance he had always kinder kept his typewriter out of Government affairs. He had always stuck pretty well to writing on the merits of the Ten Commandments, and the Merits of "Hard work, perseverance, and taking care of your Oppurtunities." But even he said that the Government going in and buying wheat to try and stabalize the Market was bad done. Well that is about the first flat footed statement that he has come out on since he advised everybody to advertise. But on the other hand Mr. Hoover put some mighty fine men on that Farm Board, and it don't seem hardly that they could all be so terrible wrong. But its like arguing the tarrif, no two can agree on just where it should start or stop.

But the main thing is we just aint doing something right, we are on the wrong track somewhere, we shouldent be giving people money, and then not do anything for it, no matter what you had to hand out for neccesities, the receiver should give some kind of work in return. Cause he has to eat just the same when he is laying off as when he is working. So every City or every State should give work or some kind, at a livable wage so that no one would be in actual want. Of course it would cost the Taxpayers more money, but if you are making it, and all your fellow men are not why you shouldent mind paying a good slice of it for the less fortunate. Course the big man's argument, and all the heavy Taxpayers alabi is that when you take too big a slice from a man as taxes it takes that much more out of his investments and might cut down on money being put into enterprises. But it diden't work that way after the war, and during it why Income taxes run as high as seventy percent on every dollar earned, and yet there was more money being made and put into things than there is now.

If your Income Taxes go to help out the less fortunate, there could be no legitimate kick against it in the world. This is becoming the richest, and the poorest Country in the world. Why? Why, on account of an unequal distribution of the money.

Favors Higher Taxes

How can you equalize it, by putting a higher surtax on large incomes, and that money goes to provide some public work, at a livable wage. I dont mean a wage that is maintained in other lines. I mean a wage is provided for the unemployed. That is if you would in no way find a job, you could go to some State or National, or City or Country Public work, that would give you say four hours day work, instead of the usual eight. You wouldent be accepting Charity. But you would be doing honest work for it, until you could get employment in some line that was not public work, and at a regular wage. It wouldent cheapen labor. It would only cheapen Public works, the thing that belongs to all the people; and the thing they woud like to have cheapened. But it would be an Insurance against not having anything to do.

There is nothing that makes a man feel better than to know that no matter how bad things break he has something to fall back on, that he can make a living out of. It would be a glorified Community Chest idea, only instead of it being doled out to you as Charity you would work for it. There would never be any real Unemployed. The so-called unemployed would be working for the State or Government a guaranteed number of hours each week, at a living wage.

Now that we got that settled all we have to do is to get by Congress, and see if the Republicans will vote a higher Income tax on the rich babies. It might not be a great plan, but it will sure beat the one we got now.

And they are built with the firm conviction that the most important thing about a motor car is that it be a good motor car. Prisoner Serves 14 Months for Crime He Did Not Commit.

By the Associated Press.

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 17 - Instead of having to report to a prison tailor shop, there to sit through the day at a sewing machine, Frank Howell today breathed in the pure crisp West Virginia mountain air and enjoyed his first full day of freedom in 14 months.

The man released yesterday from the state prison at Moundsville after serving time for a crime he did not commit, planned to spend today with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Howell on their farm just across the border in Ohio. He spent last night with his wife in their modestly furnished apartment here.

Howell, convicted or robbing the Jack Cotts filling station at Fairview Sept. 1, 1929, was released after a confession by Mrs. Irene Schrader and W. Glenn Dague that they committed the robbery. Mrs. Schrader and Dague, under sentence of death for the slaying of a Pennsylvania highway patrolman, told their story recently.

DROUTH LOAN PLANS READY

Method for Obtaining Relief Outlined; Ohio Included in Program.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—This is how a farmer in the drouth or flood area may obtain a loan from the $45,000,000 emergency fund:

He makes application to the local or county committee organized under the seed loan administration. This committee, usually composed of three prominent citizens representing farming, banking and business interests, assists him in filling out his application and passes upon it.

The committee then sends the application together with its recommendations to the regional office of the seed loan bureau. At this office the amount which the farmer may receive is determined.

When the application is approved the farmer is sent a voucher for the amount of his loan or an installment of the total amount, the balance to be paid as needed.

The loan is made on a promissory note bearing five per cent interest and is secured by a crop mortgage or lien.

Loans can be made for purposes of buying feed for work stock, seed and fertilizer and for farm machinery, fuel for putting in the crop.

In counties where committees have not yet been set up, the work of forming them is proceeding.

The Washington office will make loans in Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, North Carolina and Georgia.

An "electric nose" has been invented to measure the proportion of gas in underground chambers or storage receptacles to indicate the danger of explosions.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Jan. 18

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds promise of lively conditions for those engaged in literary or cultural pursuits, but is hazardous for those in the employment of others. Domestic, social or romantic affiliations may have some conspicuous or entirely unexpected denouements, which should be pleasant although holding some slight sorrow or disappointment. Be on your guard against small treacheries.

Those whose birthday it is, if engaged in literary, legal or cultural pursuits, may look for a prosperous year, but if in the employment of others it may not be propitious. Safeguard the work and look out for petty treacheries. Purely personal relations are likely to take on a spectacular or unforseen aspect, happy but precipitate. A child born on this day may be versatile and capable, but may do better on its own score than in employment. It may have many gracious social qualities making for its popularity and advancement, but its personal career may be adventurous or sensational.

• • •

For Monday, Jan. 19

MONDAY'S astrological forecast shows the fiery planet Mars holding conspicuous position, indicative of aggressive tendencies with decisive moves in the attainment of the ambitious, even to the extent of precipitating reckless and impetuous actions and ill-guarded and perilous words. Change seems imminent in this connection, with probable travel or new environment as well as new interests.

Those whose birthday it is may plan for a very lively year in which they will be keyed up to aggressive action and bold initiative. Perhaps to a degree of headlong and tumultuous conduct which may bring rebuff. With care, there are excellent openings to take advantage of, with change, travel, new affiliations of a constructive and profitable nature. A child born on this day should be quick, clever, indomitable, aggressive, but also tumultuous and probably quarrelsome in the endeavor to attain its ends. It may lean toward engineering, machinery or the army, which may take it on far travels from its homeland.

THREE PERMITS ISSUED

Three building permits for small building projects were issued to Marionites this week by City Clerk Sylvester Larkin, his records show. The largest permit for the week was for only a $350 dwelling addition. Another dwelling addition estimated to cost $50 was the smallest permit. Other permits were for a $300 store room addition and a $200 office building.

The average Newfoundlander eats 112 pounds of fish yearly, seven times as much as the average American.

ORANGES, EGGS LEAD IN MARKET ACTIVITY

Popular Citrus Fruit Selling at Bottom Prices in Marion Stores.

Oranges and eggs probably were the two most active items on Marion retail markets this week. The price trend of both is downward.

Eggs began the week at the comparatively low price range of 29 to 33 cents a dozen, but further pressure during the week from an oversupply forced them down another two cents to a range of 27 to 31 cents a dozen.

Oranges are at bottom prices now. The highest quotations for select oranges from California do not run higher than 35 cents a dozen, while the choice Florida varieties are no higher than 40 cents. Prices range as low as 20 cents a dozen on crated oranges.

Arrivals of a carload bulk shipment of oranges this week sent the prices to still further depths. By selling the assorted sizes of oranges by the pound grocers were able to quote prices that were the equivalent of 10 and 15 cents a dozen on these bulk oranges.

Bank Clearings Hit Half Million Mark

Bank clearings hit the half million mark for the first time in months this week. Clearings for the six day period ending Friday were $500,874.64, clearing house figures from the Marion County Bank show.

High clearings on two days, including yesterday when $104,455.05 was cleared, were responsible for the high total of the week.

Low clearings for the six day period were reported Thursday when $35,219.59 was cleared.

To See Jesus

A SERMONETTE

REV. CARL VERNON ROOP, Pastor First U. B. Church.

"We Would See Jesus."—John 12:21.

THE time-old question of the Greeks, who had come up to Jerusalem for the feast, "Sir, we would see Jesus," is still being asked today.

It implies a desire for acquaintance with the divine Lord and Savior, prompted by spiritual impulse. A desire not for speculative satisfaction, but for spiritual enrichment. Vain curiosity, or camouflage pretentious, have no place or part, with the sincere soul in earnestness seeking to see (know) Jesus.

Man is essentially religious. He desires "to see God." But his soul must be really awakened to newness of life if he desires to see the highest and the purest good. Jesus offers this attraction. In Him the superlative of man's religious nature is satisfied. For 1900 years, an earnest effort with passionate purpose, has been made through theology, ministry, witnessing, literature and art, entreaty, the wooing of the Spirit, to lead all who are blinded with sin into the marvelous light and liberty of the gospel. Many have sought and seen the Savior, while others are still groping around in spiritual midnight darkness, to eventually fall into a horrible pit.

"Look and live; come and rest; seek and find; ask and receive; believe and be saved," are only a few of the thousand assurances that come to those who honestly, conscientiously and sincerely seek for the Savior and find him precious to their never dying soul. Loyalty, unselfish service, faithfulness, humble devotion and willing consecration will then order our way and our lives will be so lived that they will count and tell for Him and for His glory.

"THE GORILLA" COMING TO OHIO

The last of the big mystery plays has been transferred to the talking screen. "The Gorilla" opens at the Ohio Sunday for a three day run.

Harry Gribbon and Joe Frisco have been cast as "Mulligan" and "Garrity," the two comedy detectives, and Lila Lee and Walter Pidgeon are the affianced couple and Edwin Maxwell is the millionaire whose life is threatened when the play opens.

"The Gorilla" was a hair-raising stage play, and with the facilities of the talking picture, should be worth a few screams and nerves in the audience. The relief about "The Gorilla," is that just when you're ready to tear your hair in fright the comedy detectives give you a big laugh.

Remember when the Myrtyl Ross players did "The Gorilla" so effectively, and Graeme Young was wearing the gorilla outfit?

PLENTY OF COSTUMES FOR "EAST LYNNE"

The costuming of "East Lynne," has been a comparatively simple job for the committee in charge, thanks to the kindness of those families in Marion who have the dresses and hats of the '90's.

"East Lynne" is the melodrama to be presented Wednesday and Thursday nights at the Ohio by the Marion Mimes.

The women of the cast are having a grand time figuring out how to fasten all the hooks and eyes and snaps that held these period gowns together. It's rather fierce, they admit, to have to walk around in yards and yards and yards of skirts, held in at the waist with stiff boning, when they're been enjoying the freedom of modern dress for the last 10 years.

And by the way, Mrs. Merle Hamilton, "Peg" to her friends, didn't study dramatics at Ohio Wesleyan. It was at Ohio State, a matter of some 24 miles difference.

Tonight after the last show at the Ohio the cast, quartet and all the men who will help on the stage will go into the theater for a rehearsal that will last until the very wee' sma' hours, and Monday night this little bit of marathoning will be repeated.

OAKIE IS HIT IN "THE GANG BUSTER"

JACK OAKIE as the "cyclone" life insurance salesman from the sticks who comes to the big town to make good, incidentally makes friends for himself in an audience where folks like their gangland tricks served in something besides the serious. Oakie is the show in the current production, "The Gang Buster," at the Palace theater.

Oakie's "old sayings," superstitions and bravery afford plenty of laughs and also lead him into some pretty tight places. Jean Arthur is the girl in the show, her father is William Morris and the villian in the case is William Boyd.

Oakie meets the girl after saving her father from being run down by a gangster sent out by Slade to "get him." Slade later kidnaps Sylvia and her rescue by Oakie, who by this time has fallen in love with her, leads him into Slade's night club and later to his home, where machine guns roar and bullets whiz around the head of the hero.

The feature will entertain the whole family as will also the trip to Japan and the millinery display of the gay nineties. E. S. D.

"RIVER'S END" FROM CURWOOD NOVEL TO SHOW TONIGHT

Charles Bickford Plays Dual Role in Story of Northwest.

CHARLES BICKFORD plays a dual role, and does a good job of it, too, in "River's End," the Warner Bros.-Vitaphone picture, which opened yesterday at the Ohio Theater. It will be shown again today.

Bickford plays both the alleged murderer, John Keith, and Sergeant Conniston of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, who pursues Keith through Arctic wastes to bring him back to justice. On the long trek back to civilization, Conniston dies and Keith is urged by O'Toole, the guide, who believes him innocent, to return to headquarters as Conniston, since both men are almost twins in appearance.

Keith intends to report and then to desert, but circumstances prevent his doing so. He succeeds in deceiving everyone as to his identity, including the girl whom Conniston loved. Meanwhile, Conniston's rival for the girl's hand receives a letter from England which proves that Conniston has a wife and child there. Angered because he had attempted to deceive the girl, the other soldiers whip "Conniston" from the post, although the has made a clean breast of it to the girl. She joins him at the boat which will carry him away from the post, and the picture fades out as the boat begins a journey to the river's end.

The drama is adapted from the famous novel of the same name by James Oliver Curwood. G.W.

The senate votes the Nye committee $50,000 to extend its activities beyond the present session. What can the senate have against the country to do a thing like that?

Senator Heflin says that Democratic National Chairman Raskob is not a Democrat. What's he trying to do; popularize John J. in this time when troubles are piling up on him?

A Pittsburgh butcher knocked out a hold-up man by hitting him over the head with a steak. But this pointer will not profit the general run of us. One can hardly tote about a steak for self-protection.

The house passed the army bill despite the efforts of the pacificists to emasculate it. Manifestly, the house has not yet reached the frame of mind in which it would render the country supine before any possible foe.

Statistics show that 1,122 cargo vessels of a total tonnage of 4,895,956 are now idle, which means about eight per cent. of the world's shipping. Were all other evidence lacking, this would indicate that the business recession has become worldwide.

Old Mother Nature was absolutely impartial in distributing her shakes this week. Not a continent escaped an earthquake and two received an extra one for good measure.

And now Governor Dan Moody, of Texas, has followed the lead of Mr. Kent, of the Baltimore Sun, and is figuratively jumping upon Mr. Raskob. Really, it's beginning to look as though the financier may never be able to foreclose his mortgage on the Democratic party.

For the first time in five years French tax collections showed a deficit instead of a surplus in December. France was about the last country to feel the worldwide depression, but evidently she is getting on to common business and industrial ground with the rest of the world at last.

The council of the British Royal Astronomical society has awarded the Jackson-Gwilt gold medal and gift to Clyde W. Tornbaugh, of the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, for his discovery of the planet, Pluto. It's all right for Clyde to run over to London and get the medal, for it's a great honor which has been bestowed on him, but if he wishes to receive a rip-roaring reception when he comes back to our shores he had better swim the channel while over there or something like that.

Preeminence in Commercial Flying.

"The airways system which we have in the United States and are building has given us a preeminent position in the matter of air transportation," Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, told the house appropriations committee, one day this week, in support of the $10,342,300 allotment to his branch of the service in the four-department supply bill. Such marked development as set out by Assistant Secretary Young is truly amazing, for our scheduled commercial air transportation has grown to its present proportions in four years, while that of European nations represents ten years of endeavor.

Of the total appropriation for Mr. Young's branch of the service, the sum of $8,972,640 is to be applied to the establishment and maintenance of civil airways, among other projects contemplated being the installation of air navigation aids over 2,000 miles of airways to be selected from the Los Angeles-Kansas City, the San Antonio-Big Spring, the Dallas-Louisville, the Fort Worth-Birmingham, the San Antonio-New Orleans, the Amarillo-Oklahoma City and the Tulsa-St. Louis routes, all of which are in part deficient in such aids.

Perhaps an even more surprising statement by the assistant secretary than that in which he told of our preeminence in commercial flying despite the subsidies granted systems in various foreign lands ranging from $2,240,000 in the United Kingdom, to $11,500,000 in Germany, $50,000,000 in Italy and up to $60,500,000 in France, was that here in the United States last year there was but one fatal accident for every 2,800,000 miles flown.

It is very possible that reading almost daily of crashes which resulted fatally we have gained an improper idea of the danger of flying. If one will but stop to think, he will recall that this crash was that of an amateur flier, that of a private flier attempting some stunt, another that of army or navy aviators training for war-time feats and maneuvers, and so on, and that he can recall few, if any, fatal accidents in the operation of scheduled commercial air systems. The explanation is that all flying on such systems is what is termed "straight."

Church Attendance.

Tommorow will be the third Sunday of "Go-to-Church" month, and it is earnestly hoped that the fine attendances at the various churches of the two preceding Sundays will be more than duplicated; that they will be materially augmented.

While there is a concerted movement on the part of the pastors of forty-six of the churches of the county, the plan to increase attendance has been left to each individual minister. We are unable to say that there was definite purpose in this plan for varied methods, but it is obvious that a little study of the results in the various churches will give some light on the relative merit of the various plans followed.

It has been said that the automobile and golf have been two adverse factors in the matter of church attendance. Neither of these can affect church attendance materially at this time, but this fact should not seriously weigh in estimating the worth of the present campaign for the reason that the same weather conditions which decrease motoring and eliminate golf offer practically as great a handicap to church-going. Hence the campaign being conducted is just as illuminating at this time of the year as it would be at any other and the method which proves most efficacious now should prove equally meritorious in any season.

It is not the purpose of this writing to seek to prove the value of churches and church attendance, for proof of that is unnecessary. It is generally conceded. It would prove a real labor to find a citizen who would for a minute hold to the contrary. It would prove a greater one to locate a citizen who would have no churches or live in any population center which were churchless. Accepting this as true, then why should there not be representative attendance at churches throughout the year?

A church edifice may speak of the esteem of the congregation which built it for the church as an institution, and the number of such edifices in a city or village may indicate the extent of this feeling in the community at the time of their construction, but it may indicate a past feeling rather than a present. The great good to be had from a church is that which results from attending it and getting the messages delivered therein and the benefits which comes from the associations therein. This being so, and it will be conceded to be so, why not make the most of church services by being a participant in them? Church services as portrayed in type or broadcasted over the air, at the best, are poor substitutes for actual church attendance. In the pursuit of that which is good, why not seek the greatest measure attainable?

The two planes of Italy's air armada forced down off the Brazilian coast have joined the nine which made the flight across the Atlantic successfully, and the entire eleven will come to the United States following visits to South and Central American points. It's up to the distinguished citizens making up our welcoming committee to polish up the high hats which have done such noble service in the past.

The well-dressed man will favor bottle green for his spring raiment, the International Association of Clothing Designers announces, from which we take it that there is going to be an awful army of men next spring unable to pass for well-dressed.

Poland and Germany.

The most valuable function of the League of Nations will be exercised soon if Germany carries out its promise to press for a league commission to take up the problem of alleged wrongs to the German minority in Poland. A sore spot in European affairs is at issue; the League may be able to forestall further action toward inflaming it.

Poland, significantly, stands to gain as much as Germany by an investigation. Undeniably the impression carried by a large number of detached observers of the irritation between the Poles and the Germans in Poland is that the Poles are mostly at fault. It would be better to have the facts brought into the open, thereby establishing culpability definitely, than to allow what may be mistaken opinions to be continued. A fruitful source of propaganda for anti-Polish agitators in Germany would be clearly defined and limited with beneficial results for everybody concerned.

There is the question of prestige, but in view of the fact that France was brought before the bar of the League four years ago on the subject of Syria, and Great Britain was arraigned more recently on the subject of Palestine, it would seem that Poland has nothing to fear. If it can furnish an adequate defense, all well and good; if not, a dangerous situation may be started on the road to recovery.

Dr. O. E. Baker, of the federal bureau of agricultural economics, holds that the agricultural surpluses which which have developed despite our increased population are almost wholly due to the large amount of feed released by the decline in horses and mules resulting from the coming into general use of the motor vehicles and implements. There was rather general realization that the motor age had great effect, but holding such vehicles and machines as almost wholly responsible is a view new to the most of us.

After thinking the thing over, Police Commissioner Mulrooney, of New York City, has decided that it was a bit "unusual" that a small boy, the only witness to the affair, should run into the theater they had just left and shout: "Lita Grey Chaplin and Georges Carpentier have been robbed," pronouncing the full names of the two. So "unusual," in fact, that it smacks of the usual jewel robbery reported by the people of the stage.

State Senator George Lommen, who sponsored the Minnesota newspaper "gag" law, is planning to introduce a bill to bring about its annulment, following the recommendation of Governor Floyd Olson, in his inaugural address, for its repeal. The purpose of the law may have been theoretically good, but practice developed its viciousness. Under it, an unscrupulous judge could, did he so wish, shut up the doors of nearly any newspaper plant and, by delaying hearings on appeal, force it out of operation.

WILL IT COME TO THIS?

Editorial Opinion.

A LAUGH FOR MR. HOOVER.

It must have been a long time since the President had a good laugh, but if he isn't laughing today at the Democrats, he is missing an opportunity.

The Democrats, as they have been very fond of reminding the President and the country of late, have decided to sweep the country in the 1932 election.

Naturally, the more the Republicans fought among themselves the more the Democrats enjoyed the show.

Unfortunately for the Democrats, however, soon after they decided that they had the next election in the bag they began to argue among themselves as to who would carry said bag.

Hence the factional row which is now kicking up over Raskob, chairman, angel, and—according to Frank Kent—owner of the Democratic national committee. And hence Governor Ritchie's transparent bid for the presidency in his fourth gubernatorial inaugural in Maryland yesterday.

Kent of the Baltimore Sun is one of the ablest literary guns of the Democratic party, and has been these many years. He may have weakened his power over the Jeffersonian brethren somewhat by saying a good word for H. Hoover now and again, but he can still wield a wicked column of facts. He wrote that Raskob had financed the Democratic national organization to the point of personal ownership, and would hand-pick the next candidate, if the righteous didn't look out.

Reactions from the brickbat were so heavy it took Raskob a week to recover sufficiently to answer. When he did answer, he called names—a dangerous thing for a mere financier to do to a columnist. Kent could think of worst names. And did.

The upshot is that Democrats who used to see only Raskob's wings now are looking for hoofs and a forked tail, which may interfere with his alleged plans to run Owen D. Young as a dark horse.

At this point enters Maryland's perpetual favorite son, Albert C. Ritchie. The political dopesters say he is Raskob's second choice. Not even the canny Calvin ever said so little in so many words. Apart from his stand for prohibition repeal, Ritchie marched up every hill and then marched down again.

But he managed to get across to those business interests which fight government regulation that he is safe.

All of which is nothing to worry the limping Republican administration. Indeed, the premature Democratic presidential booms and the Raskob agitation are actually bringing smiles again to the sad-lipped leaders of the G. O. P. All that is news.—Columbus Citizen, January 16.

After the Battle of Put-in-Bay.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

According to Captain Robert B. McAfee's "History of the War of 1812," as it was fought in the Northwest, there was a typical Alphonse-and-Gaston scene on board Commodore Perry's flagship when Captain Barclay of the vanquished British fleet came on board with his junior officers, just after the battle of Put-in-Bay, to surrender. Commodore Perry took the sword of Captain Barclay, but at once handed it back to him, saying it had been worn with too much honor by the captain in the conflict for him to think of retaining it.

According to Captain McAfee's account, the sword was handed back and forth from hand of vanquished to hand of victor a number of times before it rested in the hand of Captain Barclay, conclusively. Captain McAfee was an officer with the Kentucky troops under command of Richard M. Johnson in that war, and much of what was done by General Harrison's army he saw and was a part of. Of course, he was not present at the surrender of the British fleet at Put-in-Bay, but he states in the preface of his work that he had the assistance of the commanders of the American forces in preparation of the work, and the text was submitted to them for approval before it was published.

Magnanimity of the part of the victorious American officers probably never was shown to better advantage, and the heart of Captain Barclay, who had himself been severely wounded in battle, was completely won by the attitude of Perry. Three British and two American officers were among the dead, and were with the rest buried on the shore of the bay next afternoon—a typical Indian summer day September 11, with a shimmering sun shining through the autumn haze upon a hush of nature disturbed only by the minute guns on the ships firing as foes of yesterday were laid to rest before and by friends of today.

Exposure to Measles.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Measles is essentially a disease of children and is rarely seen in adults. It is highly contagious, but unfortunately is usually accepted as one of the diseases that children "must get." There is no basis for this belief.

The disease is seldom fatal to children over five years of age. If at the time of the attack the health of the child is good the course of the disease is usually mild. However, in younger children, if they are physically defective or undernourished, the disease is extremely serious. It is very fatal to old people.

Measles usually begins with a severe cold in the head. The eyes are red and extremely sensitive to light. About the fourth or fifth day a rash appears behind the ears and about the neck.

The rash rapidly spreads over the face and body. It lasts about five days and is followed by peeling of the skin—a process which continues for about a week.

Since the disease is extremely serious for young children, it is important that we prevent the exposure of young children to measles. All cases of measles or suspected measles should be isolated at once. Children should not be allowed to sleep with or play with others who are even suspected of having measles.

This disease is contagious from the time the first symptoms develop until a week after the rash disappears. To prevent the spread of this disease, precautions must be taken at the onset of the very first symptoms. To do this properly all persons who have been exposed to measles should be kept under observation. All exposed children, unless they are known to have had measles, should not be permitted to attend school or to play with other children.

It is only with the wholehearted support and cooperation of the public that this disease can be prevented. Sometimes a mother is reluctant to keep Johnny at home because sister has measles. Usually Johnny goes to school ignorant that he has measles and spreads it among the other children.

Carelessness may cause the exposure of a very young child who subsequently becomes seriously ill. It must be remembered that this disease is extremely fatal to infants and young children. That is why the children should be guarded against exposure.

Above all, measles must not be considered as a natural event in children's lives. It must not be accepted as one of the diseases that children "must get."

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A. B. Q—Is there any connection between the nose and the heart—that is if one can not breathe through the left nostril would it in any way affect the heart action or any other part of the body?

A—Improper breathing or insufficient oxygen naturally affects the entire system. If the left nostril is clogged it naturally makes for more difficult breathing which may or may not have further results, depending upon the conditions underlying the case. Have the nose properly examined and attended to.

• • •

D. M. Q—What treatment do you advise for intestinal worms?

A—Consult your doctor.

• • •

FATHER. Q—What do you advise for tender, aching feet, also blisters on the toes? My feet also perspire a great deal. I wear comfortable well-fitted shoes but have to stand a great deal during the day.

A—These symptoms are more or less common, especially at this season of the year. Changing the shoes and socks as frequently as possible will often bring about increased comfort. Foot baths are also soothing under the circumstances.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

• • •

SALLY ANN. Q—What do you advise for the removal of pimples?

A—Some intestinal disturbance is usually responsible for pimples. Correct the diet by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Avoid constipation at all times. For other particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

• • •

ANXIOUS PARENT. Q—What are among the outstanding symptoms of St. Vitus Dance in children and what is the treatment? The child in question is eight years of age.

A—A loss of control of the voluntary muscles is the outstanding symptom of this disturbance. Nervous, high strung children are most apt to be the victims. Try to locate the underlying cause first of all. Be sure there is no infection which may be undermining the health.

The Earth's Attraction.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Very few people give any reflection or attach any especial importance to gravitaton. The attraction of gravity is at work all the time, like the pressure of the atmosphere or the movement of the Gulf stream. If we are suddenly called upon to climb a steep hill or to lift a heavy trunk to the top of an autobus we realize that we are doing work—work against the gravitational pull toward the earth's center.

As it happens, it is very necessary to determine the gravitational constant to a high degree of accuracy. And there are variations in this highly important so-called constant. As we recede from the earth's center, the pull of gravity decreases. Thus the pull of gravity serves as a convenient measure for determining the change of curvature of the earth's surface.

In connection with the extensive mapping work of the United States coast survey, a base station for gravity is needed in this country. It is quite true, as Dr. Paul R. Heyl says, that measurements throughout the land have been compared with the value of gravity at Washington; but this latter value derives from that at the absolute gravity station at Potsdam in Germany. There are chance for error in tranferring values across the ocean, so to speak. Hence the desirability of establishing a base station of our own.

Experiments are now going forward, for this purpose, conducted by the United States bureau of standards. These experiments will be carried on over a period of several years, before an exact determination can be reached. The method employed is by means of a pendulum. The pull of the earth may be measured in several ways, notably by the use of a spring scale or by measuring the speed of a falling body. But the most accurate method is by means of a pendulum.

The ordinary mode of suspension is by means of a watch spring, flexible and supporting a weight or bob. For the most accurate measurement, this is unsatisfactory owing to the difficulty of determining the exact point of support. In precision measurements the pendulum employed is usually supported by a smooth plane resting on a knife edge of agate or fused silica.

The pendulum is of fused quartz, which expands very little with rise of temperature. To obviate temperature changes as fully as possible the experiments at the bureau of standards are carried out in a room thirty-five feet underground. Moreover, to avoid disturbing effects, such as air currents and frictional resistance, the pendulum is swung inside a metal case from which the air has been exhausted.

The time of swing for a pedulum is dependent upon two quantities: the force of gravity and the length of the pendulum. Consequently, if two of these three quantities are accurately determined, we may calculate the third.

The length of the pendulum is determined by comparison with a sandard bar, of fused quartz, the length of which is accurately known from its own comparison with the standard meter bar. This last is, according to law, the standard for our system of measurement. The time of swing is very accurately determined by means of an astronomical clock, the rate of which is checked daily by the Naval observatory time signals.

When these experiments have been completed, the United States will be independent of Germany or any other nation in the matter of a base station for its survey work.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Jan. 17—I am one of those stupy nit-wits forever straightening up from a low sweeping bow to some one I know but casually, only to see them looking the other way. And then flounder around, full of myself for being just a big boob again.

Similarly, I have frequently rushed across theater lobbies or other conspicuous public places with hand extended toward some one. But by time I reached them they would be tying their shoe laces or utterly entranced by some ceiling chandelier.

Upon such occasions I know I could walk under a nearby cuspidor wearing a silk hat. At the Ambassadeurs in Paree a summer or so ago I saw a lady who had crossed with us a week previous. Our deck chairs were adjacent, and we had exchanged not only conversation, but a few books.

Once indeed in a tempestous sea I gallantly assisted her to the rail and walked dis-reetly away, ever the little gentleman. It was natural in spotting her at the entr'acte I chose to greet her cordially. She eyed me coldly through a lorgnette and turned it on her program.

And there I was approaching with my mitt stuck out. But I turned it off slick. In front of her sat one of those slightly cuppy bounce Frenchmen with winey cheeks and a suggestion of dulled comprehension. I grabbed his hand and shouted: "Hello Alex, how's the kid?"

I endured so many of these embarrassing moments I have decided to speak to no one first from now on unless I know them intimately. After all, why should I allow a lot of mugs who do not interest me particularly to kick my inferiority complex around.

One of the fancy customs in New York is to receive about ten introductions to a stranger before he begins to bestow one of those hurried little nods. If you speak familiarly before that you are decidedly down-town, to say nothing of gauche. How I carry on!

• • •

Another thing inspiring a blinking battlement is to run across somebody you used to know who has come upon sudden and recent success. I had my twirl at that sixteen years ago. We lived in adjoining hall bedrooms three flights up in a shabby boarding-house in the Middle West. He came on to New York and wrote a successful play. I arrived when he was quite the rage and secretly expected to bask a little in reflected glory. But did I know New York!

• • •

After a number of futile telephone calls to his apartment,—to which an oddly familiar voice responded that "Mr. Blank was working where there was no telephone"—and would I leave a message?—I gave up the quest. But one night I saw him in the old Knickerbocker lobby. I used to hang around in the hope of seeing Caruso. He, resplendent in evening clothes, was with two ladies evidently awaiting some one. But that didn't matter. I stepped into it up to my neck. Hadn't we swiped each other's cigarets, cut our own hair and bilked the same bartenders together? Don't be ridic!

• • •

So I whanged him on the back, bestowed one of those little Mid-West bear hugs and waited for him to shout a joyous surprise. Instead he gave me a farthest north look. "It's O. O. McIntyre," I beamed. "You know—Snuggle-fritz." Just about then the bottom fell out of the thermometer. "O, yaa-ss," he drawled. "Certainly glad to see you. Jolly little bunch we had out there." And then, visibly nervous he turned apologetically to the ladies with: "One of the western reporters I used to know—meet Mr. McGuire!" It was my first experience in expert high-hatting, and I don't know yet how I walked across the lobby to the revolving door without a balancing pole or a Japanese umbrella. I'm still a little dizzy.

• • •

Nearly twenty years of this town and all yokel geniality is squeezed out. One becomes querulously exigent of inborn sensitivity. I write that swell standing as well as situation. The only two persons I met after coming here to whom I can unbend enough to yell: "Hello you big stiff!" are Paul Whiteman and oddly enough William Thaw, a social registerite, and, I presume, a millionaire—he's from Pittsburgh, anyway. For the rest I have the high-nosed aloofness of the human icicle. From my manner they'd never know I snapped at pig tails and skipped puddles. I'm one of God's frozen people.—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Jan. 17—Frank Charles Partridge, just appointed to the United States senate by the governor of Vermont to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Greene, must be a firm believer in the old adage that "All things come to those who wait."

The new senator from Vermont is a protege of the later Redfield Proctor—that famous Vermonter who served as secretary of war in Harrison's administration and later as a United States senator.

It was Proctor who brought Partridge to Washington for the first time to serve as his secretary while he was a member of Harrison's cabinet. And it was Proctor who prevailed on Harrison to place his twenty-nine-year-old protege in the state department as solicitor.

Then Proctor resigned his cabinet post to enter the senate. But he kept his eye on young Partridge and used his influence with the President to have him appointed minister to Venezuela near the close of Harrison's administration.

• • •

Partridge was serving in this post when the Democratic administration of Grover Cleveland came in. A Republican, he found himself out. He returned to Vermont.

His patron was still in the senate, but could do nothing for him politically.

When McKinley became President, he went as consul-general to Tangier, but returned shortly to enter the Vermont state senate. He served in this body for two years, from 1898 to 1900.

Business has occupied the greater part of his time since then. He identified himself with the marble company which the Proctor family owned and controlled, and later became its president.

Various other business interests—a railroad, a life insurance company and the Proctor Trust company—claimed his services.

But his interest in public service never lagged. He found time to rewrite the medical regulations in 1896, served as chairman of a committee to propose amendments to the Vermont constitution, and was a member of the state public safety committee.

• • •

Twice he was called upon by the federal government to act as umpire in diplomatic disputes, but due to the press of business had to decline.

He did find time, however, in 1923, to serve as one of the United States delegates to the fifth Pan-American Conference at Santiago, Chile.

Now at the age of sixty-nine he returns to Washington to occupy a seat in the body where his patron sat for so long.

Married and the father of five children, Senator Partridge is affable, courteous and distinguished. His Vermont colleague in the senate is six years his junior—the tall, solemn white-haired Porter Hinman Dale.

About the liquor Miss De Boe testified "much, very much liquor" was delivered to Clara's home, where she was directed to pay for it at the door. The largest consignment she could remember cost $275, she said.

Parties Explain Checks

The poker parties, Miss De Boe said, explained many of the hundreds of checks she drew. She said Clara always had her pay the debts, which ranged from $5 to $200.

Miss De Boe said she came to Hollywood seven years ago as a hair dresser. When Miss Bow sought to employe her she protested she had no secretarial experience.

She was to be Miss Bow's companion, she said, buy all her clothes, pay all the bills, supervise the household, pick up her dresses, "bleach and henna her hair and keep the lines out of her face so she would look good before the camera," and inform the men who called on Clara when they were no longer to be received.

State Rests Case

In the studio statement concerning the withdrawal of Miss Bow as co-star with Gary Cooper in "City Streets," it was stated a story for her next picture was under preparation.

The state rested its case late yesterday after George Armstrong, district attorney's auditor, completed identification of 1,500 checks and a detailed explanation of Miss Bow's accounts as he found them after the secretary's dismissal. He said approximately $48,000 of Miss Bow's money was unaccounted for

Probe Amtorg Corporation

The committee, specifically instructed to investigate the Amtorg Corporation, unofficial trading representative of the Soviet Union, found its export and import trade amounted to many millions annually although "its business is conducted largely on a credit basis with only $2,000,000 invested capital and the commerce to America from Russia is only about one-third of the amount of purchases in the United States."

Testimony, it said, led to the opinion that the short selling of wheat on the Chicago board of trade by Russia agencies last fall was done with no intent to depress the price of wheat.

"While the communists so far have been unsuccessful in their plans for boring from within and 'capturing' the American Federation of Labor," the report continued, "they have succeeded in weakening and virtually breaking up and destroying a number of the important unions of the Federation notably in the garment, needle, textile, and mining trades."

you see a gigantic white letter "A." That stands for the University of Arizona. Every year freshmen must climb the mountain and carefully whitewash that letter, which is 70 feet high.

The university for which that letter stands, and public education generally, are the glory of Arizona.

The growth of Tucson has been marvelous. Development of the public schools has been even more rapid. The citizens have spent their millions generously. An admirable public school is provided for the Indian children, another bigger and even more modern for children of the Mexican quarter, no discrimination being made. Splendid grade schools and high schools are numerous.

The University of Arizona is a state institution free to those that live in Arizona. Students may come from other states paying a tuition of $150 a year. Everything that a university should have this university possesses, including a brilliant and industrious president, Dr. Homer Leroy Schautz. And some things no eastern college can ever have, including a garden of desert plants, gigantic cacti, and others so small you scarcely see them. Arizona will not let you move one from the state. And the university has a pit for rattlesnakes, bred and nourished for their venom, used as an antidote for snakebit and dexterously milked from the poison glands every 10 or 15 days. It takes an adult snake that length of time to store up new poison. Vindictive human beings and warring nations do it more rapidly.

The girls at this coeducational university get the use of a good saddle horse for $10 a semester. The boys play polo and plan an eastern trip to challenge Princeton. They might try Lawrenceville at the same time.

LABOR CRISIS LOOMS AS FACTORIES CLOSE

250,000 English Cotton Weavers Locked Out Following Refusal of New Plan.

By The Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 17—Lancashire cotton mills were closed today against 250,000 weavers, whose representatives have refused to accept a "more looms per weaver" system inaugurated by the mill owners.

The lockout brought England face to face with an even more serious labor crisis than represented by the South Wales coal mine strike on the same day that the Wales coal strike officially ends, allowing 150,000 miners there to go back to work.

In addition to the weavers, 250,000 spinners and members of the various finishing trades also will be laid off shortly, since without the weavers there will be no work for them to do. This will bring the number affected by the Lancashire lockout to about half a million.

In an effort to avert the crisis officials of the labor ministry conferred for ten hours yesterday with representatives of the weavers and mill owners, separately and in joint meeting.

The owners insisted in their demand that the weavers tend eight looms each instead of four and the weavers were adamant in their decision not to accept the new system. When the conferences broke up notices were posted that the lockout would begin this morning

PRESIDENT FIGHTS RELIEF FARM BILL

Hoover Calls in Senate Leaders To Seek Solution of Problem.

Leader Robinson of the Democrats put it down as an effort to embarrass passage of his proposal.

"It will be a poor excuse for those who can afford it not to contribute because the government also proposes to give," he observed.

Earlier the senate had heard that Western communities felt unable to respond to the Red Cross appeal and to take care also of local relief needs.

Seeing disposal for the time being of the relief issue, the senate projected its program further, planning to take up the disputed nomination of Eugene Meyer as chairman of the federal reserve board. And Senator McNary, assistant Republican leader, decided to ask also unanimous consent to ordering three night sessions weekly, beginning next week.

The house departed for a while from debate of appropriations to receive the report of the special communist investigating committee, headed by Representative Fish, Republican of New York.

It was to receive also a statement by Chairman Legge of the farm board, endorsing a temporary embargo on wheat, feed grains and butter as a measure of farm protection. Such a proposal has been introduced by Representative Burtness, Republican of North Dakota.

Yesterday the senate ordered an investigation of bread and sugar prices.

About Making Use of the Funeral Home

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

The obliging, sympathetic funeral director always wishes a bereaved family, and friends, to feel free to use the funeral establishment at any time. It is intended for service and has every facility for caring for any needs which may arise. No additional charge is ever made for its use.

All preliminary preparations for burial can be made more satisfactorily at a funeral establishment than in a private home. This matter, however, is optional.

Someone is present at all hours. Callers are received with attention, courtesy and accommodation. A record is kept of all visitors, and of the floral tributes which arrive.

The funeral establishment is an ideal place for holding the funeral services, and the majority of families now use it for that purpose. It saves not only a great deal of confusion and inconvenience, but expense as well.

Plaids

WHISPERINGS along the clothes line declare they will run riot in the color theme and those who are in the know tell us that we will be positively lurid in our zeal to be in the mode. Plaids they tell us will be among the six best sellers. To those who have yet to don their first plaid frock, it is our claim that they are due for a thrill, and those whose plaid dresses are still bright spots of days that were, will have difficulty in refraining from throwing all restraint to the four winds and joining the ranks of the plaid-minded, regardless of spare chins, Baby Austin lines and bunions. Go up in the attic and find the old comforter made in the days when plaids were in their hey day and have a glance at those gorgeous shades blended into patterns which placed you in a position to be heard long before you were seen. But who cared. Seriously, we thought for the most part they were beautiful, particularly when the frock had a front of handsome wine color or soft green satin.

Idols

WE all have our idols but for the most part we worship them from afar and more or less secretly, and ofttimes in fear and trembling lest we discover they may be dogs of clay. For real, genuine, out-and-out admiration it's our bet that a gang of newsboys we saw one night this week wins the gold lettered city directory. At a popular sports event the card bore the name of a former football star who evidently wishes incorporated in his memoirs some ring achievements, and following his turn on the mat he betook himself to a ringside seat to watch his fellowmen take their turn at the rabbit punches, flying tackles, uppercuts and what next. We thought it flattering that he was no sooner seated than some seven or eight youngsters gathered about him and if ever there was unadulterated admiration written on anybody's map it was on theirs. Some, bolder than the rest, engaged our hero in conversation and it's a safe bet that what he said then will be remembered long after the rest of the crowd has forgotten who fought who.

Welsh Rabbit

WELSH RABBIT, according to those who claim to know, originated in the land whose name it bears, when the natives hunted rabbits in the woods. With succeeding years the hunting was restricted, due to the fact that the kings of England favored their noblemen with grants of land whereby on former grounds was eliminated. A bright Welshman conceived the Rabbit Dish and it became known as "Welsh Rabbit." The original "Welsh Rabbit" was made by placing toast covered with thick slices of Cheshire cheese in the bottom of a Dutch oven, placed before the fire with strips of bacon on hooks in the upper part of the oven. In cooking, the dripping fat of the bacon mixed with the melted cheese. It was served hot with the cooked bacon. All seasoning was added after the rabbit had been cooked.

INDOOR PICNIC

The Lecture-Recital club members enjoyed an indoor picnic Thursday night in the Canto club rooms at Prospect and Center streets. Thirty-five members were present for the party. Afterwards a rehearsal was held of the music to be sung at the coming Elsteddfod.

Art Club Members Hear St. Gaudens Family Memoirs

INTIMATE happenings in the everyday life of Augustus Saint Gaudens, the man whose sculpturing is the acknowledged climax in American art, were told in a charming informal talk of "Memoirs of the Saint Gaudens Family," by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Annetta Johnson Saint Gaudens before members and guests of the Art club last evening.

The party was given at the home of Mrs. Walter E. Hane of East Center street. Mrs. Hane and Miss Belle Johnston presided at the table from which tea was served at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon. A center piece of roses and gypsophelia, with tall lighted tapers in blue holders, centered the table.

Mrs. Saint Gaudens is enroute to Florida for the winter months, and is stopping at Columbus to present an exhibit of Saint Gaudens' work at the opening of the new Columbus Art gallery soon. Last evening she had various small works of sculpture which she had made, and photographs of the work of Augustus St. Gaudens and her husband, Louis Saint Gaudens.

Mrs. Saint Gaudens was born in Flint, O., of a poor family, and her first love of art came in modeling horses. When she was able to go to New York her work showed such promise in the school of Augustus Saint Gaudens that later he sent for her to be his assistant. It was here that she learned to know him better, and it was at this time that she met his brother who later became her husband.

Almost hesitantly she told of the assistance she had been both to Augustus and Louis Saint Gaudens, and of the great sculpture commissions on which she had worked.

Paul Saint Gaudens, her son, was born in Flint, O., and is himself an artist of merit. Mrs. Saint Gaudens' talk dealt not so much with the technicalities of sculpturing, as with the details of the lives of the sculptors.

Augustus Saint Gaudens created the world-famous statue of Abraham Lincoln in Lincoln park at Chicago. One of his first works to gain recognition was his "Diana of the Tower," atop Madison Square Gardens. He was commissioned to do this piece by Stanford White, architect of the Gardens. His masterpieces of sculpturing are found over the United States and in several European capitals. Augustus Saint Gaudens died in 1907. He was of French-Irish birth and was brought up in a poor section of New York City.

At the close of her talk, Mrs. Saint Gaudens talked with the guests individually.

The presentation of Mrs. Saint Gaudens was one of the outstanding events in the Art club year.

CIRCLE NAMES CHAIRM

Mrs. W. W. Wilson was named circle chairman to serve for a period of two months at the meeting of Circle No. 4 of Epworth League Aid society Thursday afternoon. She will preside in the absence of Mrs. R. W. Kauble who will leave Sunday for a two-months stay in Florida. Mrs. J. F. Hurd, educational chairman, presided for the first of a series of devotional services based on the Twenty-third Psalm. Lunch was served by a committee of which Mrs. D. Brobst was chairman. The next meeting will be in four weeks.

CHAPTER 23

Vivienne Asks for Aid

WHEN the broadcast of Emile [illegible] et Cie, reached its tri[illegible] finale, the dynamic little [illegible]nist took both of Aileen's [illegible] and kissed them with de[illegible] fervor. Colonel Sherwood, [illegible] and Channing, together with [illegible] other guests, crowded about to [illegible] Aileen how wonderful she had [illegible].

On the outskirts of the group, Jimmy watched her adoringly, but with varying reactions. He felt that Aileen was further removed from him than ever. He had begun to wonder whether Channing's interest in Aileen had not become more personal than when he had offered to help her at Jimmy's solicitation.

Aileen turned to him and, for just an instant, Jimmy almost imagined that she was going to hug him. But in a flash he grew conscious of an almost formal coldness.

Max Klein appeared and elbowed him aside. Instantly Jimmy pulled him by the coat-tails. "Listen, you nut," he whispered. "If you say what you were going to you'll give the whole thing away."

"Nut is right!" the producer admitted. "I'll fix it. Mademoiselle, I don't know what kind of a contract you got with this feller Gluck, but any time you say so I'll put on a show for you." He lowered his tone. "Say, you were great! I heard you outside. Every minute I was thinking you were still Miss Santa Claus."

"Max!"

Aileen—Mademoiselle, I mean—Klein grew red with embarrassment and did not know what to say.

"Don't!" She put her hand on his arm. "I understand—and thank you. I know how much you mean to Max. I—I wish I still—could be."

In spite of her assured success, Aileen felt uneasy. Half dreading it she wondered if there would be another telegram from the woman who had signed herself—Adrastela.

"Will you get me a cab?" she asked Jimmy Crane. "You don't need to go with me."

"Is that permission, or a request?" he asked in disappointment.

"Don't be silly!" Aileen said, but she rather dreaded the ride with him in view of her decision. What she meant to do must be gradual. She could not begin tonight. However, her dream had pointed out her course with regard to Jimmy. This was no time to weaken.

Later Jimmy drove to Channing's studio as he had arranged. Klein and some others might be there, and Jimmy felt that a night of it was precisely what he needed. There was something different about Aileen, and this sudden change in her attitude cut him to the quick. It couldn't be adulation that had turned her head. Aileen was too real for that. He had not the faintest suspicion of what was in her mind, which perhaps was just as well.

As he stepped into the studio a wave of Max Klein's pudgy hand warned him not to make a noise. Channing was seated at the telephone. His expression was intent and he listened carefully to whoever might be speaking. Jimmy slumped down in an easy chair and lit a cigaret. He wondered what was eating Klein and what the devil caused Channing to look so serious.

"Just a moment!" Channing spoke into the transmitter. "I want to think what to suggest. Of course you must come over here. No, don't try to say any more. Phone wires have been tapped. You go home and get some sleep. I'll get the car and drive down. You go to the shop as usual. I'll be there in the morning as soon as you arrive."

There was a silence as he listened, then he softly said goodnight.

"Well?" asked Klein, who already had some idea of the conversation.

"It was Vivienne," Channing explained for Jimmy's benefit.

As soon as Kronberg had disappeared on his way to the railroad terminal, Vivienne had hurried to the nearest pay-station. She had not wanted to frighten Aileen, and had purposely refrained from phoning to her hotel. She had also feared the switchboard of the broadcast studio. As a result she had been calling Channing's number for an hour. While she talked she had kept her eye on the glass door of the booth, but no one in the drugstore appeared to be paying the slightest heed to her being there. Kronberg might have been bluffing.

"That's about all," Channing concluded, relating what she had said. "No wonder the poor kid's uneasy. It won't do to let her face it alone, but just what should we do?"

"You're going to bring Viv back with you?" Jimmy asked. If her coming meant complications it would be better if Aileen spent the holidays alone.

"That depends on what I find." Channing, too, seemed in doubt. "Apparently Kronberg is on his way, so he'll be here tomorrow. Max, can you check up on him without his knowing it?"

"Sure," said Klein. "I would get that job. As one of these detectives, I'm the headache in your drink. Here for weeks I've been thinking how wise I am and now I see I'm crazy. Just the same I'll look after Kronberg, and Jimmy can hang around Aileen. Maybe there's no need of that, but it won't do any harm. You go on to Philadelphia and leave the rest to us."

Vivienne returned to Mrs. Perkins' shortly before 1 o'clock. The apartment was dark, but the landlady's door was ajar when Vivienne passed. No sound came from the woman's bed, which meant that she was listening. Vivienne went by bristling and shut herself in at once.

Several times on her way from the drug store from which she had phoned to Channing she had paused to glance behind her. Unlike New York, the city streets were practically deserted, and she was almost certain that she was not followed. In spite of Kronberg's threat of surveillance, that fear was no doubt unfounded. Yet she was sure he would learn of her whereabouts wherever she might go.

To keep on with this shadow over her—threatening Aileen as well—would be too impossible. That was why she had phoned to Channing in her desperation. Vivienne wondered if he knew—or cared—what that had cost her pride. Waiting there in the phone-booth—battling with herself—Vivienne had alternated by trying in vain to reach him and telling herself that she wouldn't. In the stuffy compartment everything seemed to conspire to make her look scatterbrained. Nor was that the worst of it!

First, there had been that story in Tattle Tales. Channing hadn't hesitated to say what he thought of that. Then the day in his studio, when he had plainly told her that the trouble was what people must naturally think of her. And he had not even wanted—what she might have given.

As though that was not bad enough, her folly had led her to Kronberg. What she had done in a fit of pique had left him but one construction to place upon her conduct. In each of these misadventures she had deliberately cheapened herself. Now, if Kronberg proposed to talk, what little reputation she had would be torn to shreds.

Oh, she had been a fool. She reproached herself with increasing bitterness. Once again she must eat humble pie and depend upon Channing's advice. There was just one consolation, and in spite of her depression, Vivienne welcomed that. However greatly Dwight might resent her having involved him in this mess, she was confident he would help her. If only for his own sake, he would be forced to do so. A man like Chaning would do all he could to avoid the slightest scandal in connection with his murals. That meant he must stand by her—and by Aileen too. But this comfort did not make her pie any more palatable.

To Be Continued.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Saturday. It was a little warmer, but not so warm that any of us thought about going out to the pasture to see if the grass had started growing yet. I would have hated to be a buffalo out in the wild west in the winter time and have to push the snow and ice out of the way with my bare nose so that I could get to the frozen grass, and a lot of bare Indians shooting arrows at me all the time. Jubilee would of hated it too. He even hates it when he has slept in a warm bed all night to be let down till his bussel lands in the snow. My back is almost all right again.

The bunch were at the barn this morning because it was warmer and was Saturday, and whe n I had milked and was feeding my face my mother told my father about us sliding off the top of the barn yesterday, and he said that was nothing for a boy to do. He said we would have to get tough so we could play football when we got sent away to school when we growed up to get educated. He said he has about made up his mind that a boy can't be killed and has stopped worrying about me. Then my grandfather got up and went and got his fishing tackle and the hatchet and a wooden box to set on and started out to go to the lake, and we all trailed along. When we got way out on the ice he stopped and started chopping a hole through it, and it was about two feet thick, and we all took a chop at it before we got all the way through, and we had our skates and Feeble and Younise and Maggie were skating around, and when my grandfather started to get his line ready we all skated off for a long ways up along the shore. The ice was smooth and our skates were sharp, and we circled around and I seen my grandfather setting on the ice and we all went back to set him why he didn't set on the box and if he had caught anything, and he was most frozen.

He had stopped through the hole with his good leg, and he couldn't get up because his other leg was still and he couldn't get it under him, and he was all froze but the words he was using. We all helped him up, and some carried the fishing tackle and the hatchet while the rest of us helped him till we got to here where the man lives that rents boats in the summer and he made up a hot fire and my grandfather sat by it till he steamed, then the man brung out a bottle of brown stuff and told my grandfather to take a swig of it. And he smacked his lips after it and said for another man he would go back and catch another big through that hole.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Arrival of the Tiger Family.

"WHAT surprise?" Junior and Roderick demanded with one voice when their grandmother said that our neighbors, the Tigers, coming up the farmhouse steps, had come to be present at "the surprise."

"Wait and see," I counseled them, as I rose to welcome the humble family whose members, our helpers for many years, have endeared themselves to us by their loyalty and their other sterling qualities and—if the truth be told, have afforded us much quiet amusement by their vagaries, and by the intermittent feud which Katie and buxon Mrs. Tiger wage concerning the housekeeping.

But Jerry, the lank, gangling son of tall, lean Sam Tiger and his plump wife whom Dicky long ago nicknamed "Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sprat," although he has been careful never to let them overhear the nickname, had spied Roderick and Junior and was calling "Hello there, kids" in as delighted tones as if he had been their own age. And indeed in many ways, Jerry's mentality was not superior to those of the two youngsters.

No Decorum Possible

It was all the signal the two small boys needed. I long since have given up as hopeless the task of enforcing decorum upon Junior's part when Jerry Tiger comes into the offing, and I simply gave a resigned sigh as the two small boys rushed past me with a hurried, ludicrous "'Scuse, please," as a sop to the conventions and hurled themselves upon Jerry, who grinning widely, let them clamber up his lank but powerful figure until they were seated in their accustomed places upon his shoulders.

"I've got another horse to show you fellers," he announced proudly, and we as hosts laboriously suppressed the smiles which Jerry's sagas of his horseflesh invariably bring to our faces. Ever since Jerry was a youngster in his early teens, he has been as inveterate a horse trader as his father before him. But both father and son are either too honest or too gullible—a mixture of both qualities, we suspect—to be successful in the pursuit, and the Tiger pastures always hold from two to five of the most decrepit old horses imaginable which are Jerry's pride, and which have afforded Junior many opportunities for riding.

"Oh—h! is that the surprise Granzie was talking about?" Junior demanded, and Harry Underwood echoed with a wide-eyed gravity that almost upset the rest of us:

"Yes, Jerry, is that the 'surprise' that's waiting for us? If it is I cannot wait much longer to see it. I hope you are going to let me ride it, him, or her."

"Her name's Dora," Jerry said with a loud guffaw which his father echoed.

"He named her after his latest girl," he said, and Jerry crimsoned, but laughed in a fashion which showed that he enjoyed the teasing.

"You stop your fooling, you two," Mrs. Tiger admonished her son and husband, with a note in her pleasant voice which both her turbulent "mean folk" need whenever she uses it. "Here, you've only seen that blessed baby but once before and you come in making all sorts of noise. Is she anywhere around? I hope you have not waked her up? No, look! here she comes, the precious!"

For Katherine, as soon as my mother-in-law had turned from her crooning to the crying infant, had unobtrusively wheeled the baby carriage inside the house, and now appeared carrying my small daughter immaculate in a fresh frock and newly tied ribbons, and with wide open eyes apparently studying the visitors, that solemn, inscrutable stare of tiny babies which makes one wonder whether they are days young or eons old, trying to adjust their memories.

The next few minutes were given up to the whole-hearted and tender admiration with which most people regard a new baby in their circle of friends, and it was not until Katherine had said "Enough," and tucked our tiny princess back in her carriage that even Roderick and Junior—I should write especially Roderick and Junior, so fascinated were they—spoke again of "the surprise."

Eager for Surprise

"Those boys will burst if you wait much longer," Harry Underwood said.

"What's the ratio of words between you and them?" his wife demanded with a grin. "I saw you loosen your belt five minutes ago. But I don't believe it's anything to eat."

"It isn't," I said hastily, "and when you've finished with—with—"

"Our collation, as they say at the church socials," Lillian supplemented, transferring her gibing from her husband to me.

"Thank you," I countered imperturbably, and went on from there. "We'll go out to see it, if you don't mind."

"Oh! it's something we have to go out to see," Mr. Underwood retorted. "Well! I'm game whether it's a new litter of pigs, or a tea house after the general style of the Taj Mahal. Nobody shall ever say that H. Underwood, esquire, failed to pump up adequate enthusiasm for any little improvement his country cousins have made on their place."

"You can furbish up your adjectives," Dicky said. "You'll need 'em. Come on—"

He caught my eye and hastily substituted "Mother" for the "Madge" I knew he had intended to utter, and as my mother-in-law, with a pleased and proud little smile swept through the door on his arm, I knew that I had consoled her for the unhappiness which her contretemps with Junior over the baby had brought her.
